Goals. All our lives we've been told to set them, work for them, and reach them. In the past four years our goals have ranged from winning a Western Massachusetts championship to getting into college. Now we are on the threshold of a new set of goals.

Little did we anticipate what was to come when we entered high school in 1980. As confused freshman, graduation was a distant goal. Our major concern then was finding the next class without getting lost. Sophomore year was a transition year. We were not expected to behave like freshman, but we still didn't have upperclassmen status. However, the infamous junior year finally arrived, bringing with it S.A.T.'s, term papers, and college searches. Our goal that year was just to survive.

Then, the sun rose on the first day of senior year. Finally, we were The Seniors! With this year came our biggest goals: applications, Senior Class Play, Prom, Banquet, and GRADUATION. Remember the agitation we felt in April waiting for that thick envelope to arrive? To us, our most important goal was accomplished when it did. Who would have thought that way back in 1981 this day would come.

As we prepare to move on, we can look back on our four years at Longmeadow High with pride and appreciation. Although we have encountered many obstacles along the way, as the Class of 1984, we have worked together to produce a determined, ambitious group of young, intelligent people who will continue to attain their goals, no matter how far-reaching they may be.

It is not the attainment of the goal that matters . . .

Mr. Angelo Teixeira

Each year, the editors of Masacksic must undertake one of the most difficult tasks that they must face as yearbook editors: choosing the traditional yearbook dedication. We have so many fine teachers and staff members at the high school that any one of them could well deserve this honor.

However, since the theme of the 1984 Masacksic concerns goals, we attempted to narrow the field to those who particularly helped us develop and attain the many goals we have chosen for ourselves. These educators have not only helped to mold our thinking while we were students at Longmeadow High School, but they have shaped in many ways our goals and our successes in years to come.

Quite often, these professionals exist as "unsung heroes," performing their difficult jobs year after year without much fanfare and without many "thanks!"

However, we, the Class of 1984, do want to thank three of them at this time for their genuine concern, for their careful guidance, for their warm love.

It is with great honor that we dedicate the 1984 Masacksic to Mr. Angelo Teixeira, to Mr. James Climo, and to Dr. Gilbert Lamarre.

During our four years as advisors to the class of '84, we have seen enormous changes in you. We have watched and hopefully helped as you matured physically, emotionally, and intellectually. The experience has been a pleasant one. Our class has developed a fantastic spirit that reflects your many personalities. You're special people. Good luck everyone!

On Wednesday nights in Longmeadow, many LHS seniors, instead of watching TV (or doing homework), attended class council meetings. This surge in the interest and attendance was attributable to the enthusiasm and dedication of President Charlie Bergin, Executive Vice-President Becca Asseo, Committee Vice-President Buzzie Hayes, Secretary Jen Stone, and Treasurer Mary Eickhoff. However, almost all of the seniors pitched in to work on the class float, the play, the prom, and the senior banquet. Also, industrious seniors ran many successful fundraisers, including the sale of Lancer cups and pennants. Class advisors, Mr. Richard Rediker and Mrs. Jane Murphy, contributed much time and energy, making them an integral part in the seniors' success formula.

Down from the door where it began.

I'M THE

November 19th was the date, and the Longmeadow High School football field was the location for the 1983 edition of the annual Daisy-Weed game. Alhtough both teams were excellent, the Weeds, sparked by outstanding offensive play, romped to an 8-0 triumph. Cathy Nebel scored the decisive touchdown, and Kerry Flanagan converted for two extra points. The high quality of game play was due to the excellent coaching: Matt Henshaw, Will Masi, Matt Naughton, and Jim Fricchione led the Daisies, while John Sheehan, Mike Dallape, Casey Hanafin and John Nyman spurred the Weeds to victory. Other senior guys added excitement by donning cheerleader outfits, complete with "correct" body proportions. The Daisy-Weed game was a terrific day for everyone, adding spirit and unity to the senior class of 1984.

Football

The Lancer football team, under the expert guidance of coach Mike Deary and the dynamic leadership of senior tri-captains John Sheehan, Will Masi and Matt Henshaw, has successfully completed their 26th season. Led by three returing starters, senior John Sheehan, senior Jim Fricchione and junior Randy Hobbs, the Lancers exhibited a sturdy defensive backfield. Other standouts on defense included seniors Casey Hanifin and Brad Andrews, linebackers, Larry Stone and Scott Gutstein, tackles, and juniors Jim Yesu and Eric Stiles, ends.

The offense, with junior Josh Rappaport at quarterback, showed rapid improvement throughout the season, helped by seniors Matt Henshaw, Eric Brunette, Mike Molitoris, Will Masi, junior E.J. Barkett, and sophomore Mike Murphy. After a slow start, the Lancer's playing ability picked up as they gained experience. But what they lacked in experience, they made up for in determination; that is why they had a super season.

Soccer

"Better individuals make a better team." That was the philosophy taken by this year's boys' soccer squad. With only five returning seniors, including tri-captains Matt Tyson, Mike Daly, and Bob Lee, the team struggled to overcome their lack of experience. Coach Ron Morissette hoped that improving individual skills would improve the overall team performance. Because competition is extremely "tough" in the Pioneer Valley Soccer League, one of the best in New England, each game was a new learning experience.

After a rather slow start, four consecutive games without a goal, the Lancer booters and superstars Matt Tyson, Mike Daly, and Steve Coco began turning the tables. They finally cracked into the victory column with continuous effort, dedication, and teamwork. Although they had a long road of inexperience to travel, they did their best all the way. Look out for this young squad in years to come!

Cheerleading

S-U-C-C-E-S-S! That's the way the cheerleaders spelled success for L.H.S. in the fall and winter seasons. Led by captains Becca Asseo, Margie Sutton, and Lisa Quinn, the young varsity squad added much spirit to the football games on those chilly, wet Saturday afternoons, and to the basketball games on winter nights.

It took long hours of practice to master the cheers and to perform them in unison before large crowds of people. Advised by Elizabeth Lee of Springfield College, the squad's practices consisted of a warmup, jumps, and various types of cheers including the sideline, chant, and formation cheers. It takes dedication, enthusiasm, and a "loud mouth" to be a cheerleader and though the cheerleading squad did not have a record of wins and losses, they counted as a win every time they cheered for L.H.S.

SOCCER

Led by the superb playing of the senior tri-captains Cathy Davitt, Laura Hyman, and Kate Lantz, the 1983 girls' soccer team had a fine year. Other excellent players included senior Kerry Flanagan, junior Lori Picard, and sophomore Lynn Bromley. Coach Michael McCarthy described the team as a group of "good athletes with terrific attitudes." During the season, the team strove to improve their passing, their defense and their teamwork skills. Although the team is not as experienced as many of the other teams, the girls still had a good season. Girls' soccer enthusiastically looks forward to next season because many members of this young team will be returning.

Field Hockey

Spirit! That's what the varsity and junior varsity field hockey teams revealed this season. Tri-captains Buzzie Hayes, Betsy Cain, and Melinda Lawson led the team to victory with the help of outstanding players like Sue Plumb as right wing, Sue Dineen as left inner, and Amy Blanchard as center half. Also displaying their skills on the playing field were Carolyn Croteau and May Briones, who shared the position of link. Coached by Ann Simons, varsity field hockey should be admired for their skill and dedication.

The promising junior varsity team, coached by Lee-Ann Mercandante, also had teamwork and enthusiasm. Some of the standouts included Sarah Martel and Abby Roth on defense, and Chris Atkins and Chrissy Quinn on offense. An excellent team, Longmeadow field hockey's versatility and determination were evident at all times throughout the season.

Cross Country

Does anyone really know what cross country running is? It is a combination of team competition and solitary long distance running. Here at LHS, Mr. Winseck demanded both strength and endurance from his cross country team. There were experienced runners on the boys' team, including Andy Willse, Bob White, and Bill Arnold, while underclassmen Dan McCarthy and Michael Mann kept the ranks strong. The girls' team, a new addition to cross country, also performed well. Strong upperclassmen, Anne Davidson, Anita Chang, and Judy Castagna, led the team which included freshmen sensations Christine Willse and Shannon Gardella. With strong runners on both the boys' and girls' teams, the cross country should prove to be one of Longmeadow's best teams.

GYMNASTICS

Vaulting into the new season, the girls' gymnastics team, coached by Judi Gregory, looked strong. With talented underclassmen like sophomore Jennifer Rosol and freshman standout Rebecca Kittredge, Miss Gregory hoped to draw good scores. Explaining that, "returning people look strong" and we hope to work new talent into the lineup, such as sophomore Lisa Nardi and freshman Terri Marino. Team Captain Marcie Leopold, the only senior on the team, was a top competitor. Debbie Stone and Tonia Ouellette, both sophomores, contributed impressive scores on bars, floor, and vault. The three juniors in the team were strong in individual events and the remaining five freshmen are guaranteed contributors in the next four years.

Coached by Ford Madden and co-captained by Larry Paquette and Joe Franson, the boys' gymnastics team was ready to roll into the 1983 season. Coach Madden felt that this team was very hardworking and strong. With talent on each event, the team set their sights to win Western Mass and to break the school point record. Coach Madden explained that Joe Franson's best event was the floor exercise, and Larry Pacquette, Co-captain, was a top competitor because of his great strength. Senior John Fijol, an all arounder, was very talented on the pommel horse. With dedication, enthusiasm, and of course talent, the 1983 boys' gymnastic team had a successful season.

Swimming

Swimming is a highly individualized sport; however, members of the Longmeadow High School swim team, know that success in competition requires a team effort. Although the boys and girls were on separate teams, they practiced together and relied on each other for moral support, especially during intense meets. Six days a week, three hours a day, the swimmers engaged in strenuous training in the pool and in the weight room. Their hard work and winning spirit was evident in their rousing successes against rivals Minnechaug and Cathedral.

Led by first year coach Peter Cabral and co-captains Rowland Wu and Will Masi, the boys counted on the team's depth and dedication to help them top the WMASS competition and possibly capture the state championships.

The Lancerettes possessed experience and strong will, as well as promising freshmen. Although they were unable to compete statewide, the girls, coached by Mrs. Isabelle Fraser, completed a winning season and finished on top in WMASS.

Dedicated individuals make up a strong, successful LHS swim team.

Hockey

With a super team, high hopes, and loads of spirit, the LHS hockey team skated to victory after victory this year. Under the fine coaching of Ray Suzor and assistant coach Robert Ayers, the pucksters had both a strong offense and defense with many fantastic players skating for the team, including an especially talented group of seniors.

Senior goaltenders Charlie Bergin and Neil August aided the team along with defensemen Scot Meara, Peter Murphy, and Norman Willett. Leading scorers included seniors Marc Lajoie, Jeff Rehbein, and Lee Andrews.

However, the strength of the team did not end with seniors. Juniors Greg Collins, Jon Fisk, and Eric Thor made their presence known and two freshmen, Brett Suzor and Gary Picard, also helped the team to victory.

With a crew of top players, the LHS hockey team skated with high hopes to make the playoffs, their goal for the season. Because of their Division I status, there was much stiffer competition this season. Coach Suzor looks forward to next year, though the team will suffer the loss of valuable seniors.

Basketball

Longmeadow High School has developed a tradition of turning out top-notch basketball teams, and the '84 team kept up that tradition. Although they were expected to finish "no better than average," they surprised everyone, coming out at the "top of the heap." Much of their success can be attributed to their excellent ability, dedication and team spirit, qualities possessed in abundance. Lending his expertise to the team was veteran coach Ron Morissette, who has guided and produced victorious varsity teams for the past fourteen years. Leading the Lancers to victory were five varsity players from last year: seniors Jim Walker, Seth Potter, Tom Walbridge, Deren Gibson, and junior Randy Hobbs. Making the smooth transition from last year's undefeated junior varsity team were juniors Ed Carey, Dave Krumsiek, John Davitt, Sam Radner, Dean Tufts and senior E. J. Cummings. As they played, the team gained experience and were able to improve their skills. Although the seniors will be missed next year, the juniors are sure to keep up the Lancer's tradition of excellence in 1985.

Basketball

Longmeadow High School girls' basketball team has come a long way. A few seasons ago the team lost every game; last year they reached the tournament but were eliminated in the first round. This year they were expected, however, to lead their division.

The veteran starters who experienced those first two disappointing seasons, were determined to capture the title this time. Senior co-captains Kerry Flanagan and Cathy Davitt hoped to climax four varsity years with a division championship. As Coach Carol Moore observed, "This team really wanted to win it all this year."

With four returning starters, experience and speed were the team's predominant strengths. After a slow start and three frustrating losses, the girls' luck began to change and their persistence was rewarded. In a thrilling game against top contender Northampton, the Lancerettes fought long and hard as Lori Picard's last-second hoop gave Longmeadow a hard-earned, one-point victory. Skiing

At the first fall of snow at Berkshire East this winter, the Longmeadow High School Ski Team set out to practice for another victorious year in both the slalom and giant slalom events. Because last year's team had set such high standards, and because many experienced skiers were lost to graduation, this team needed spirit and hard work to follow in their tracks.

The girls' team, led by senior Kate Lantz, had many newcomers worthy of the Lancer Ski Team reputation, as well as loyal racers from past years such as Betsy Cain, Barbara Gill, Ann-Gail Bregianes, and Shari Gerstein.

The boys' team, led by Tim Dow, basked in the expertise of many returning seniors including Jeff Wilks, Bill Swan, and John Connor. Once more, they were the class of the league. Second-year Coach Rebecca Folta had high expectations for her team again this year … and why not? The Longmeadow High School Ski Team always lives up to its reputation. They are winners!

Wrestling

Coach Roger Moss led the wrestling team to a very successful season this year. Although the team lacked many seniors, they still did very well. The bright side to this story is that the team will have many more strong wrestlers in the years to come with the abundance of underclassmen. Led this year by seniors Joe Franson and Joe Dasco, the team was supported by juniors Don Scott and Vinny Panuccio and sophomores Peter Manning, Jim Cohen and Mark Donahue. For the wrestling team, next year will be their year to shine.

Administration

Mr. Dan Lynch has moved up! Although he was not unhappy with his position as a history teacher, he enjoys his new job as assistant principal. Getting to "deal with a variety of kids for many different reasons," not necessarily just those students with disciplinary problems, comprises what Mr. Lynch likes most about his new job.

However, he did say that he has had some very rewarding experiences handling students who do have disciplinary problems and who have come to recognize their troubles. Also, dealing with teachers and administrators that really care, as well as with concerned students, has been quite rewarding.

As an administrator, he has gained a whole new viewpoint on what "makes LHS tick," and he feels good about his contribution to that "ticking." He feels that he must do a good job for all of LHS, both for the teachers and for the students.

Basically, Mr. Lynch seems happy with the title, "Daniel P. Lynch, Assistant Principal," and he enjoys the High School Community. Having successfully survived his first year in office, Mr. Lynch has received "the stamp of O.K." from both students and staff.

Guidance

Where would students be without their guidance conselors? Every Longmeadow High School student knows that the Guidance Department is an important part of his academic life, always there to adjust a schedule problem or to help with choosing a college. However, most students don't realize that Guidance offers social guidance, too.

Mr. James Climo, head of the Guidance Department, says that, "the better you know your counselor, the better your counselor knows you." He urges students to better acquaint themselves with their counselors through appointments during free blocks.

One of the things that upsets Mr. Climo is that Guidance has many resources that go unnoticed. Along with a computer-assisted Career Resource Center, Guidance has a great deal of information about colleges and scholarships. With its dedicated personnel, Guidance at L.H.S. is a major part of a student's life.

English

The versitile and highly qualified teachers of the English department, under chairman, Mr. Russell L. Cobbs, use not only creativity and innovative teaching methods in the classroom, but also utilize their special talents in advising many extracurricular activities. These teachers and activities include the prize-winning Outlet Literary Magazine advised by Ms. Linda McShane, Mr. Mel Grant advisor of Masacksic, the National Honor Society led by Mrs. Judy Pincus, Mr. Roger LeBlanc's field trips to Broadway plays, Ski Club led by Mr. Mel Grant, and Mrs. Jane Murphy, co-advisor for Senior Class Council this year, while Mr. William Kirkpatrick and Mrs. Judy Pincus sit on the Faculty Advisory Committee.

Within the department, unique activities occur like a field trip to Stratford, Ct. to see Romeo and Juliet, the viewing of the movie Macbeth for English III students, and performances by readers of the Canterbury Tales. The fourteen teachers of the English department, according to Mr. Cobbs, "work to maintain the quality of our instructional program, in writing especially, and in spite of the constraints created by 2 1/2."

Proposition 2 1/2 has affected the English department as it has all other departments in the school. Replacement of textbooks became more difficult and class sizes grew. Also, the department lacks sabbatical leaves, destroying the opportunity for the revitalization, enrichment, and growth of teachers. Despite Proposition 2 1/2, Longmeadow High School English teachers are still sensitive to individual student needs and differences.

The department program has changed slightly from last year. Revisions in the curriculum of the Senior Sequence, Synthesis, and Skills courses, defining criteria for student placement, and refining objectives in the writing programs are a few such changes. For next year, Mr. Cobbs aims "to assign students to classes in which they can have the most opportunity to achieve or succeed." The scholarly and dedicated teachers of the English department strive to uphold their high standards of teaching, and continue to make the English department one of the strongest in the state.

Mathematics

William Ahern

One of the many successes at Longmeadow High in the Math Department has been the growing interest in computers. Computers have resided at L.H.S. since 1968. But, it is just in the last three years that larger enrollment in computer classes has begun. This year, over four hundred students enrolled in computer courses at the high school!

To serve all needs, several computer courses were offered at the high school. A quarter course, Computer Literacy, taught students the computer language BASIC and beginner programming, including knowledge about computers, Computer Problem Solving A and B were half- year courses. Here, more serious programming was taught. A new course this year, AP Computer Science, taught students PASCAL, a computer language required by many colleges. The Math Department was pleased that twenty-five students registered for the course.

"Kids today won't survive without basic knowledge of computers," commented Mr. David Daniels, who has returned this year as the head of the Math Department, a position he has held for five years. Longmeadow High School's new computer literacy requirement supplies students with a basic knowledge of programming and with today's commercial computers. By the time he graduates, a student will have reasonable knowledge of computers from either high school or middle school courses. Hopefully, a student will continue his or her computer education in the future.

Foreign Language

The language department at Longmeadow High School teaches students by letting them live the culture of the language being studied. One teacher who practices this type of education is Mr. Whittaker, who has been teaching French here for twenty-three years. He believes that showing French students a sample of the French culture furthers their understanding of the language. His classes do units on French meals, family life, and city life. Mr. Whittaker tries to go to France every other summer to brush up his French. Having lived in France as an exchange student for two years while mastering the language, he worked as an English assistant at a lycee there. For the third consecutive year, Mr. Whittaker represents the language department on the award committee.

Mrs. Llorens, a new Spanish teacher here at LHS, also gives her students a "bite" of the culture they are studying. She made "Flan", a rich Spanish dessert, to give her students a taste of what the Spanish eat. Planning to do more with foods for her classes, she cooks many Spanish dishes at home, relying on the experience she got while living in Valencia on the coast of Spain.

In both languages, Longmeadow High School excels with talented and imaginative teachers who bring common cultural objects to class with them to widen their students' scope of the society and language they are studying.

Science

The Science Department at Longmeadow High School is an integral part of every student's curriculum. More than three-fourths of all students at LHS take at least two years of science. Most students take a year of IME, biology, and chemistry; then if bold enough, some venture into physics, AP biology, or AP chemistry. Most science courses involve laboratory work, which can be as simple as using a microscope, or as complex as calculating centrifugal force. Although science is not stressed as much as the basics like English, history, and mathematics, LHS science teachers think that most students develop a deeper interest in science. Because the world is becoming more dependent on science and related subjects, it is important for students to have a solid background in this field.

Social Studies

Which department has one of the most interesting approaches to teaching at Longmeadow High School? The history department does! The "open space" gives students a chance to develop their own skills while working at their own pace in the resource area. Most schools have no such area, particularly not one reserved for just one subject. Longmeadow students are privileged to receive the "open classroom experience". Here, students learn in a more relaxed atmosphere than is found in a regular classroom. Students find diversity in Monday Lecture, which is given by a different teacher each week and helps to prepare students for large college classes. Some students fail to realize what a fine educational opportunity the open space provides, but all benefit from this area as they take the U.S. History I and II classes. As Department Head, Mr. Peter Santos, said, "This set-up may not work well in all school systems, but most Longmeadow students seem to appreciate the chance to experience a different kind of classroom environment." However, the open space is not the only area where history is taught at LHS, and many students take non-required courses in regular classrooms. Diversity of environment, combined with teachers who are interested in social studies, make the history department one of the most fascinating departments in the school.

Business

The Longmeadow High School business and practical arts staff has helped many students come closer to their future goals. Some of the more popular courses include typing, clothing and foods, and accounting.

Recently, word processing has gained a large enrollment. Brought to LHS two years ago, it was instantly perceived as the future in business.

The majority of the students taking career education courses are planning a future in business, but some take the courses with the knowledge that they will have the skills available if they are ever needed.

Practical Arts

Artistic talent swamped Longmeadow High School this year. Of the thirty-five artists who submitted their work to the Scholastic Arts Awards, many placed quite high in the competition. Mrs. Judy Ebeling, an art teacher at LHS, proclaimed that she had an outstanding group this year in her foundation classes, which consisted of second and third dimensional design, the basics for all advanced classes.

Teachers of the advanced classes, Mrs. Edith Broderick and Mrs. Barbara Laub, agreed on the amount of outstanding young talent and look forward to working with these students. The advanced program includes photography, drawing, ceramics, and painting. All of these courses are built upon the dimensional design classes and, therefore, should have an excellent turnout in the years to come. Much colorful art was displayed throughout the school this year, helping to create a bright atmosphere at LHS.

Music

Electronics. Today, this word is commonly associated with computers and technology. At Longmeadow High School, however, electronics are also employed in the music department. Approximately fifteen students, some with no musical experience, take electronic music courses each semester. Many of them continue to an advanced course. By listening to different types of music, students learn about the components of sound. Students use synthesizers and tape recorders, in addition to traditional instruments, to augment the sound. The synthesizer offers flexibility for pitches, tone colors, and volume. Like art, electronic music requires originality and creativity. Rather than copying or altering the works of other composers, the students create original compositions. Although few of his students will become professional composers, Mr. Thomsen believes they gain self-respect for the difficulties of writing and arranging songs. Electronic Music is a course in "music sensitivity" according to Mr. Thomsen. Most people, including adults, are unaware of electronics role in modern music. Record albums are actually a collection of recorded segments of music which have been edited electronically. Synthesizers enhance the sounds of rock bands and television cartoons. "By working with sounds, students become more interested in listening carefully to sounds."

Physical Education

In addition to its excellent academic opportunities, Longmeadow High School also offers an unbeatable physical education program. Although students are required to take gym throughout high school, most enjoy it and feel that it is another important part of their education. Physical education class gives the students an opportunity to try new and different sports or to improve their skills in the sports they are already familiar with. Led by a group of talented and dedicated teachers, the students receive instruction dealing not only with the rules and strategies of the different sports, but also often with their origins and histories. LHS offers a wide selection of sports from which to choose, ranging everywhere from tennis to volleyball to outdoor ed. Although over the past few years the program has been reduced, physical education will continue as another aspect of the top-quality education available at Longmeadow High School.

Special People

Did you ever wonder who keeps Longmeadow High School running so smoothly? Besides the names you may already know, there are many special people that you may not know. For example, keeping our halls sparkling clean is Rich Remillard and his staff. Signing our library cards every day and helping with our studies are Margery Baird, Peter Bergeron, Poppy Pratt and Irene Beachman. Providing projectors and other audio-visual equipment to both teachers and students is Merrill Oltchick, who is also in charge of Longmeadow's own Channel 8. Giving out medical care is Helga Kohnfelder, who has replaced Joan Low. Reading announcements over the PA system and doing many other secretarial duties are Evelyn Nakos, Margaret Derby, Marietta Berry, Carolyn Cash, Marjorie Webster, Dorothy Perrault, Lynn Chambers and Dorothy Bonsall. Improving students' reading skills are Mrs. Beth Young and Dr. Gilbert Lamarre. These special people all make Longmeadow High School the place that it is: a quality school.

JUNIORS

FRESHMEN

The class of '87 made it! Having completed freshmanhood under the guidance of president Matt Landon and officers Wendy Kittredge , Andrea Doherty, and Hillary Stone, the frosh are looking forward to even more success in the coming years. Events like raising money with pom-pom sales and a dance, or constructing an artistic float, are only the beginning of the great experiences that the class of '87 are bound to have.

MASACKSIC

Masacksic, a colorful record of the school year, is the creation of a very dedicated staff. At 7:40 each morning, 35 students pour into room 110, prepared to work on the yearbook. On most days, many of them return in the afternoon to plan layouts, crop pictures, type stories, and write picture captions.

Masacksic is a valuable publication to everyone. To some, it is a picture album of a year's events and memories. To the editors and staff of Masacksic, it is a valuable piece of art and literature. Assisted by Advisor Mel Grant and Editors-in-Chief Cindy Friedmann and Julie Ann Roberts, the '84 Masacksic is a collaboration of creativity. However, the most important aspect of the yearbook is not the pictures and articles within the cover, but the experience of working together: staff members, editors, and advisor.

Each year the Masacksic improves with new techniques, new ideas, and new people and becomes a unique blend of many talents; the Masacksic reflects the best of Longmeadow High School.

VARIETY SHOW

The large audiences were laughing "All Night Long" at the annual Variety Show at Longmeadow High School, presented by the Key Club. Producer and director, Robbie Kagan and John Aronson, were delighted with the show's success this year. Their expertise guided the show to a joyous outcome for all.

After much preparation and hard work, the Variety Show was ready to be presented on it's opening night, Thursday, February 2. The participants anxiously waited backstage to go on, but after the opening act, "Natural Science", started playing, excitement replaced the jitters.

Masters of Ceremonies, Richard Skoler and Charlie Bergin, added to the show with their zany jokes and gags. The Variety Show definitely lived up to it's name by including acts ranging from the jazz of Jill Schulman and Crystal Hamer, to the classical guitar of Bruce Gregori, to the traditional baton-twirling of Laurie Feinstein. For the audience, good times and top entertainment lasted "All Night Long". The Key Club, under the supervision of Mr. James Climo, generously donated the profits of the show to the building of the new wing at the Bay State Medical Center.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

Make way for the bearers of the golden tassels! The LHS National Honor Society, composed of seniors and a few select juniors, all have either reached or exceeded the standards set by the organization. N.H.S. plays an important role in our high school. Members tutor students in various subjects, run the bookstore, and host the annual ping-pong tournament. N.H.S. was led this year by outstanding officers, including president Martin Banson, vice president Maria Briones, treasurer Mary Eickoff, tutor coordinators Joanne Fanelli and Paul Titus, Secretary Natalie Savich, and social coordinator Cindy Friedmann. Under the capable direction of Ms. Lolene Blake and Mrs. Judith Pincus, N.H.S. has made 1983-1984 a rewarding year. Fifty-five seniors were admitted to the ranks along with 21 juniors. With many more members on the way, 1984-85 should be a very successful year for Longmeadow High School's National Honor Society.

A.F.S. And Outlet

The American Field Service is an international club that allows students to spend a year in a foreign country or host a foreign student. All Longmeadow High School students have the opportunity to increase their knowledge and understanding of different cultures by joining AFS. Led by president Catherine Eiff, AFS planned many exciting events this year, including an exchange week with another club, a day trip to New York City, International Week, which featured the fall carnival and dinner, and an exchange with Wilbraham in January. AFS is a chance to learn more about other countries, meet interesting people, and have a lot of fun along the way.

Did you know that Longmeadow High School has a literary magazine? Called Outlet, it is a student publication of short stories, artwork, photographs, and poetry. Aided by her talented staff, advisor Linda McShane chose the students' contributions for this year's edition. This magazine welcomes new members, new contributors, and especially new readers. Outlet is an excellent showcase for the outstanding artistic and literary talents here at Longmeadow High School. As one enthusiastic staff member said, "This year's issue was the best Outlet ever!"

BAND

The many students involved in band at Longmeadow High School make beautiful music together. But, to double our pleasure this year, we had two bands at LHS, concert band, which consists of about fifty students, and a wind ensemble of about thirty members. Both bands, directed by Mr. Burkle, contain a cross-section of both upper and under-classmen. These band members had many opportunities. Some played in the orchestra for the school play, The King and I, others participated in chamber music concerts, in the Jazz Ensemble, and in District and Allstate activities. Mr. Burkle leads the concert band, the wind ensemble, and the orchestra, while Mr. Mucci heads the Jazz Ensemble.

Mr. Burkle said that seniors this year were very musically inclined, and that he "will be sorry to see them go." The musical program this year included playing at the football games, during the Bicentennial weekend, a November concert, a Pops concert, an exchange concert in the Washington area, and the annual Spring concert. These concerts were extremely successful because of hard work from the teachers and the students. Mr. Burkle added that he was "excited about the musical results with this year's organization." With great teachers, talented and enthusiastic musicians, many opportunities, and LHS band should be music to the ears for years to come.

The King And I

As anticipated, this year's Drama Club fall musical, The King and I, proved to be a great success. Experienced director, Micheal Mucci, incorporated over one hundred students in stage crew, props, sound, orchestra, lighting, costumes, makeup, and publicity. There was a bonding friendship between cast members this year, and everyone worked extremely well together. Senior Jennifer Ribble professionally handled the female lead, Anna Leonowens. Paul Titus, another senior, royally performed the male lead, the King of Siam. Supporting leads were played by senior Elizabeth Maurer as Lady Thaing; senior Marcy Dobkin as Tuptim; junior Leigh Dobkin as the Kralahome; and sophomore Danny Martin as Lun Tha. The chorus, consisting of fifty hardworking students, also did a marvelous job. Choreographer Linda Kenyon, who has choreographed the fall musicals for the past few years, made the dancing in The King and I very exciting. Colorful costumes, a responsive audience, as well as a lot of hard work and dedication, all contributed to the high quality of this year's production.

HOMECOMING

Homecoming activities, 1984, coincided with Longmeadow's Bicentennial celebration. This gala weekend began with a super bonfire Friday night, followed by a dance where more than one hundred underclassmen enjoyed the music of top forty artists including Michael Jackson and Duran Duran. Saturday morning the sun shone brightly on the town parade which included students representing the four classes, the marching band, and the cheerleaders.

Constructing a float on the theme of the Bicentennial, each class came up with some innovative ideas. The senior class used the WAQY mobile, a mobile radio station, to tow their red, white, and blue statue of Uncle Sam. On a hand-pulled dolly, the sophomores displayed their replica of First Church. The junior creation was a giant birthday cake decorated with cupcakes and lollipops, all surrounded by two hundred balloons. The freshmen, without organized leadership, made a respectable showing with a one-room schoolhouse. All the students worked hard, but the trophies for the biggest and most unique float were awarded to the junior class.

Under the direction of Mr. Wilfred Burkle, the Longmeadow High School band also won an award. Many teachers marched in the parade while others were seen along the parade route with friends and neighbors.

The homecoming events culminated with a football game at which the Lancers hosted the Classical Bulldogs. Although the Lancers were dealt a disappointing loss by Classical, the day was a great success uniting the community in one big celebration.

1. Big Bird joins the Parade. 2. Homecoming bonfire burns high. 3. Grandpa, can I be a Lancer too? 4. Laurie, Jen, and Karen show their class spirit. 5. Seniors show spirit for the town's birthday. 6. Ray Glasgow kicks off the Homecoming. 7. Heavy competition in the Bicycle Race. 8. Varsity Cheerleaders join the Parade. 9. Class officers May and Jenny accept their float's award.

Jet Jotter

A group of top reporters scouts LHS for the Jet Jotter every month. The Jet Jotter is a free newspaper supported by the school committee and by advertisers. About 3,000 copies are read by students, faculty and people in the community. The 30 staff members write intriguing stories about varied topics like the draft, the novel, 1984, teenage sexuality, Kurt Waldheim (the former Secretary General of the U.N.), and astronaut Scott Carpenter. Perenially, the Jet Jotter sweeps up awards at competition. This year they won first prize and Medalist at the Columbia University Journalism Contest. At Holyoke Community College, the Jet Jotter won awards for best makeup, lay-out, and best photograph. In March, the students attended a convention in New York.

Under the supervision of Mr. Fitzgerald, Chris Sterba, editor-in-chief, and Martin Banson, managing editor, reporters dig for headlines. News editor Bruce Bergman presented top stories about important issues. Features editor, Elizabeth Castagna, published articles about interesting activities while editor Alun Polga featured controversial viewpoints in his editorial section. Cathy Davitt provided full coverage of school sports while Steven Goldstein and Amy Porchelli added to stories with their drawings and photographs. Business manager Laurie Falk and advertising manager, Melissa Tick took care of business relations and circulating manager, Kerry Kisiel made sure everyone got a copy each month. Through dedicated editors and a hard working staff, the Jet Jotter brought LHS dazzling headlines.

1. Members of the Jet Jotter examine their work during homeroom. 2. Jet Jotter's advisor, Mr. Fitzgerald. 3. Dale Sherman, Lauren Antiles and Amy Porchelli review the Jet Jotter. 4. Editor Martin Banson talks to the staff during a meeting. 5. Cathy Davitt enjoys reading the latest issue. 6. Jet Jotter staff members. 7. Laurie Falk displays her talent. 8. Editors of the Jet Jotter. 9. Jet Jotter members search for their articles in the paper.

CHORUS

Many students at Longmeadow High School take advantage of the fine musical programs offered by girls' chorus, mens' chorus, and concert chorus. However, one of the most popular courses is Lyrics, a full credit course complete with written tests and homework. These fine programs give students instruction in reading music, tone quality, and voice control, all of which pays off in the beautiful sounds heard at the highly successful Winter and Pops concerts. As usual, several excellent singers from Longmeadow received statewide recognition including seniors Paul Titus. Jennifer Ribble, Marcy Dobkin, Steven Resnic and Maria Briones.

With their very promising chorus groups and highly commendable Lyrics vocalists, Mr. Peter Thompson and Mr. Michael Mucci will continue to build a successful musical program at Longmeadow High School. We should all be proud of our fellow students for their diligence in developing their voices, and we thank them for the enjoyment we get at concerts or even when they just sing in the halls.

ACTIVITIES

Special Talent

Students at Longmeadow High School are capable of much more than just studying. Many spend their free time developing special talents and skills. While some students head directly to the stables for their horses at 2:15, others can be found at the Olympia Ice Arena perfecting their figure skating routines for the weekend competition. Many members of LHS devote their free time to ballet, tap, jazz, and modern dance. Another hobby is car restoration.

Many of these "special" students have been commended for their talent. Senior Lisa Bettigole and her horse, Excaliber, have competed in both state and national competition. Jennifer Betit is another unsung hero of LHS. She has won several figure skating competitions and even received honorable mention at last year's New England Championships. Seniors Beth Dannay, Sue Elliot and Robyn Murphy, have displayed their dancing skills in many performances. Underclassmen Jenn Daly and Beth Vinick are sure to continue the tradition with their acclaimed dance skills. It is clear that the population of Longmeadow High possesses some multitalented people!

WEEKENDS

Friday afternoon at 2:15, the bell rings. At 2:16, the halls of Longmeadow High School are buzzing with rumors of the weekend's activities. A common question is "Where's the party?" A typical weekend itinerary goes as follows:

Friday night means keg parties with "a few" friends. Infrequent dances are populated by freshmen and sophomores.

After a late awakening Saturday morning, the afternoon begins with a football, basketball, or lacrosse game. Victory celebrations follow, although defeat won't dampen the party mood. Friendly's is overrun with the younger crowd, while licensed juniors escape in their cars. Some organize trips to the ski slopes or beaches.

Sundays are more relaxed. The underclassmen wander around the shopping malls or football field, while juniors labor over their term papers at the library. Seniors spend many fall weekends touring college campuses. Sunday night is dedicated to that last-minute English paper or science lab that has been ignored all weekend.

This schedule may be altered by individual's interests or responsibilities. Many students are employed, and others contribute their free time to service organizations and clubs. Keyettes are often seen at Shriner's Hospital, local nursing homes and community projects. The Outing Club sponsors hiking and canoeing trips.

After a week of demanding academics, the weekend brings well-deserved relaxation in a variety of social activities. However, Monday morning the grind returns.

1. Maria Briones and Natalie Savich relax on weekend. 2. 84 parties more! 3. Alex and Robbie start the weekend right. 4. Seniors celebrate the weekend. 5. Spending the weekend with friends. 6. Show us those legs Kerry! 7. Friends forever. 8. Mike and Jeff take a break from T.F.L.

Physical Fitness

Have you ever wondered why there are so many trim bodies walking around Longmeadow High School? Well, many students work out after school, not only for sports, but for the enjoyment they get when they feel fit. Dancing is a popular form of working out. Beth Dannay, a senior, has been dancing since she was young because she enjoys it so much. The same is true of juniors, Leann Bailey and Lynn Midura. They all enjoy dancing as well as keeping fit. Another aspect of physical fitness training is jogging. Many LHS students jog either to stay in shape for a sport or just for personal enjoyment. Stephanie Watnick and Kelly Gardella jog after school in order to keep in shape for track. However, the new craze sweeping the nation, aerobic dancing, has not missed us. Many girls involved in this exercise, either work out at Figures and Fitness, or stay home with Jane Fonda. All this interest in afterschool fitness, other than sports, shows that people in this school want to stay in shape.

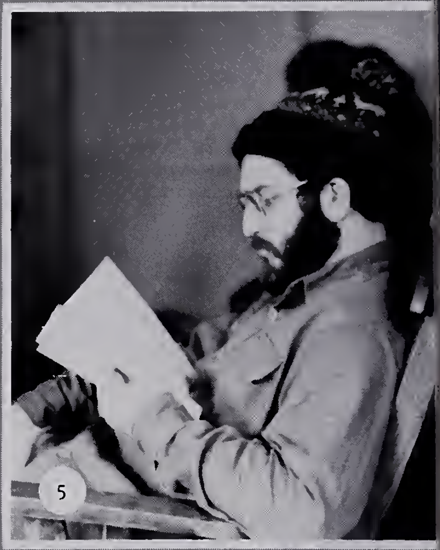
OUTING CLUB/LIBRARY AIDES

The Outing Club is another LHS club that "climbed to new heights" this year. Advised by Mr. Ron Hirsch, thirty students went back to the basics of nature during weekend excursions together. They went cross-country and downhill skiing, backpacking, rock- and mountain-climbing, and canoeing. President Robert Dabbs, Vice-President Casey Wenz, Treasurer Paul Moran, and Secretary Shelagh Foley led the group, teaching survival skills while also learning a lot themselves.

The LHS Library Aides volunteered much of their time to the organization of the library this year. There were twenty-one aides in all this year, all of whom went through a four-week training session in the beginning of the year. The helpers had the difficult job of taking care of the circulation procedures at the front desk. They assisted the library staff during their studies, three to four blocks a week; their help was indispensable, and they deserve much credit.



1. The Outing Club on their cross-country skiing trip. 2. The dedicated library aides. 3. One assistant learns the procedures for the front-desk's activities. 4. Outing Club members set up camp. 5. President Robert Dabbs helps prepare dinner for the rest of the members. 9. Club members break for a picture during another excursion. 10. Marlene helps Mrs. Pratt out during her free time.

KEYETTES

Who gives shiny apples to the teachers? The Keyettes. The Keyette Club at Longmeadow High School proved to be extremely successful in 1983-84. This year they were led by their spirited officers, President Kathleen Ahrens, Vice Presidents Laurie Ristino and Barbara Glinski, Treasurer Karen Haskin, Secretary Marianne Caviston, Parlimentarian Jennifer Betit and advisor Mrs. Patricia Tarnauskas. Each holiday, they boosted school spirit by selling carnations. In addition, they sponsored the Red Cross bi-annual Bloodmobile drive and helped raise money for HERA, the Hotline to end Rape Abuse.

Every Sunday during the school year, in conjunction with Key Club, the Keyettes visited with the patients at the Shriners Hospital for crippled children, in Springfield.

At the 1983 annual Keyette convention, Longmeadow High School gained national recognition when Karen Haskin was elected international Keyette treasurer, and Laurie Ristino was elected international Keyette Project Chairwoman.

Because of the hard work, dedication, and spirit of the Keyettes, Longmeadow High School, as well as the surrounding communities, profited immensely in 1983-84.

KEY CLUB

In recent years the LHS Key Club, sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Springfield, has gained a prestigous reputation as a helpful, dependable, and reliable organization. Once again, this year the members lived up to that reputation.

Under the leadership of their president, Alex Roth, and the guidance of their advisor, James Climo, Key Club flourished. In fact, they earned the number one ranking in New England. Additionally, they placed number four nationally. Some of the most successful projects they sponsored included Toys for Tots, canned food drives, a fundraiser for the Baystate Medical Center, the Childrens' Hospital in Boston, and an extremely successful variety show.

Throughout Longmeadow, and the surrounding communities, there was a great enthusiasm for Key Club. All of the goods and services they provided were well received. In addition, they ran the extremely popular "Legs" contest. For a quarter, each student could vote for the pair of legs they preferred. The revenue was then used to buy computers for Longmeadow High School. All in all, Key Club was very successful this year.

1. Key Clubbers have great spirit. 2. Alex Roth, Key Club President. 3. Daren Suhs. 4. Sam Radner concentrating on business. 5. Kiwanis leaders sit in on a meeting. 6. Jeff Reynolds. 7. Mr. Climo Key Club advisor. 8. Roland ready for action. 9. Joe Sadak.

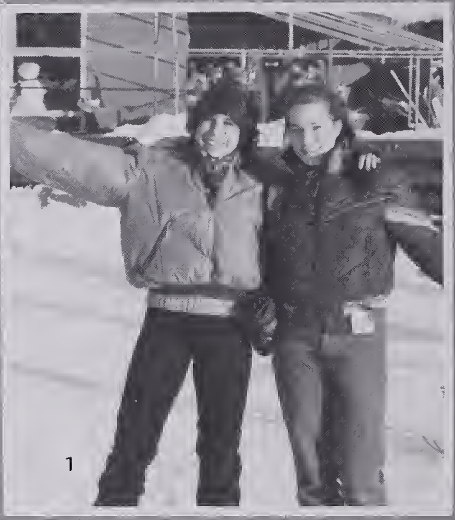
SKI CLUB/METCO

1984 was the year of "great snow." Under the direction of advisor Mr. Mel Grant, the LHS Ski Club had a super time at Mt. Tom once again this year. It was the perfect season for skiing, and the participants, including Mrs. Jane Murphy, Mr. Acton Wiley, and Mr. Ron Hirsch, were more enthusiastic than ever. Mr. Robert Potvin, one of the chaperones for the club, believed that the program gave almost 100 kids the opportunity to try the complex sport of skiing and to see if they liked it. One club member summed it up well by saying, "Ski Club is a great time because it's awesome skiing and awesome people."

Another club, Metco, aids students intellectually. Metco is a program allowing students from Springfield to attend and enjoy the benefits of Longmeadow High School.



1. Lisa Lenchitz and Caroline Cardwell enjoy themselves on the slopes. 2. Ajay and Rob show-off their skis. 3. A group of Metco girls chat after school. 4. A Metco student poses for the camera. 5. A freshman trio gathers before hitting the slopes. 6. Metco students gather for a picture. 7. Joking in the hallway. 8. Ski Club advisor Mr. Grant poses on the hill. 9. Claudine Ciccia pauses before starting back up. 10. Two Metco students converse about the club.
